

vCom Solutions Corporate Overview

On average, telecom is the fourth largest expense for mid-sized businesses. But despite the impact of this expense, most companies struggle to control telecom spend and inventory and manage the carriers on their own. In order to support multiple offices, they settle for dealing with multiple carriers, and the painful results that follow:

- Limited visibility into inventory and spend
- Lack of buying power
- Multiple points of contact for service and support
- Unclear and unconsolidated bills

IT departments at mid-sized enterprises have limited time and resources. They must devote their energy to maintaining network health and security, not to addressing the cost of the network, and managing the numerous suppliers and activities. And without the right tools and expertise, the process of selecting, implementing, and managing networks and circuits may result in downtime and costly billing errors.

There is a better way.

vCom believes your money and resources should grow your business. That's why vCom saves you 20% or more on your telecom costs, and 100% of the hassle. vCom manages the entire telecom lifecycle, from procurement to support to analysis, helping companies select the right telecom technology and gain visibility and control over their spending and inventory. vCom's solution includes the vManager cloud-based telecom management software, complemented by a full portfolio of professional services.
